

The number 666 is associated with the Devil, possibly the devil re-incarnated as man and definitely in the best of cases with a description of the antichrist. That is, of course, according to the Bible.

That number is to be recognized when a group of people stop selling and buying from another group of people. I believe this is happening today in Bahrain.

So when we search for a human advocating the number 6-6-6, would that be a realization of the prophecy in the Bible and that person would be so evil as to be equal to only the devil?

After all, Bahrain is protected by god, and the Bible is god's word, even if in Islam we believe that some parts of it are not in the form that came down from god.